Cong. J. J. "Jake" Pickle announces

Dams get another $7 million

Washington, D.C. — Congressman J. J. "Jake" Pickle said Wednesday that the House has approved seven million dollars for the San Gabriel River project in the 1976 fiscal year.

The funds were contained in the public works appropriations approved by a 377-28 vote late Tuesday night.

House members also oked an additional three million dollars for the project which will be utilized during the transitional quarter when the federal government changes its fiscal year calendar in 1976.

Pickle had urged the appropriation committee to fund the project at the level the Army Corps of Engineers had requested which would have added roughly $3.4 million to the project.

"I'm glad that the Congress did make this appropriation for this most worthy program. These facilities have long range importance for the residents of Williamson County and the Central Texas area," Pickle concluded.

Pickle coffee at courthouse set for July 3

Free coffee and cookies and a chance to meet and visit with Congressman J. J. "Jake" Pickle in the rotunda of the Williamson County Courthouse — that's the schedule for Thursday morning, July 3, 10:30 - 11:30.

Cong. Pickle said he had been wanting to "get back over and see some of my Williamson County friends" for several months. "Tell everyone I want to see as many of my old friends as possible and at the same time, meet the new people of the area," he said Friday.

Remember J. P. Kerr, the man who, most of all, made Georgetown Railroad run? If you knew him, you remember.

Kerr, a ram-rod straight old man even then, came to Georgetown about 15 years ago and no one had ever seen anything like him. He was an inferno of ideas, information and action. He could quote the whole freight rate manual and it is hard to imagine that the local railroad could have been saved and reclaimed without him.

HE LEFT HERE eight or ten years ago and launched into a gigantic effort to establish a short-line railroad to serve the Odessa-Midland area. He had enormous help and implacable enemies. He developed cancer and he still fought the battle, which when finally won, backfired because the whole country was constricted with the short money problem.

So, that dream for Kerr and hundreds of supporters in the West Texas area never came off, although it could be revived in time. If it ever is, I'll bet they name the line for this remarkable fellow. He died a few days ago. He had finally found an enemy he couldn't lick, although he battled it to a standoff for quite a long time.

I talked to a pretty little woman a few days ago who had recently retired from the CIA. She was deeply disturbed and upset because of the spy agency's current problems, including ongoing investigations and lurid charges. "The CIA," she maintained, "is not a policy-making agency. It is a No Need to Know operation, where agents take orders from policy agencies. When we received a call or an order from the White House we responded."

SHE FELT THE PROBE would backfire on the "silly congressmen" who are pushing it. She declared, indeed, that it already has, referring to the evidence that the late President Kennedy and his brother, Robert, might have asked the CIA to assassinate Castro. "It was their president," she asserted, "who had ordered these questionable things. The publicity has hurt the CIA and its capacity to work effectively in other countries and it has injured some truly dedicated people who have always labored for their country's good."

One thing I don't understand, among many: Why has President Ford been bitterly criticized for visiting Franco, a vanishing tyrant, and applauded for visiting the Russian tyrants who, unfortunately, will be around for a long, long time?

O. V. Bennett, Jr., the affable Austin insurance expert, who enhances the Georgetown Savings and Loan Board with his presence, claims he has the formula to determine whether you are young or old:

"Youth is your state of mind — not your age. 'You are as young as your hope — as old as your doubts — as young as your confidence — as old as your fears.'"

"You are as young as your faith, — as old as your despair."

Public hearing set for Sherrill Oaks

City to annex NHI land

'Tactic to stop housing project' spokesman charges

Proposed annexation of land intended for the Sherrill Oaks residential subdivision will be the subject of a public hearing at 6 p.m. July 14 in the Georgetown City Council Chamber.

The Council set that date for the hearing Tuesday afternoon at a rerun of a June 19 special session and heard the first reading of the proposed annexation ordinance.

The ordinance, if passed, would add to Georgetown 189.82 acres of land just south of the present city limits, along Highway 81 near the Mar-Jon Candle Factory.

This is the same tract National Housing Industries of Austin (NHI) has planned for development as a low-cost residential area to be called Sherrill Oaks.

CHARLES STEGER of Steger and Bizzell, a Georgetown firm retained as consulting engineers by NHI, said Wednesday that his client had been unaware the city intended to annex and did not desire annexation. He also charged that annexation was a tactic designed to cancel the firm's planned installation of a Municipal Utilities District (MUD).

A MUD is an administrative vehicle for financing the cost of utilities installation and service outside the city limits of municipalities.

Private developers are granted the right to set up a MUD, which must be controlled by residents of the district through an elected board of directors.

THE MUD board levies taxes, usually higher than municipal taxes, which go to pay off bonds used for initial utilities financing. If the MUD is later annexed by a city, its residents pay city taxes, the MUD is abolished, and the city

City status asked

The City of Georgetown will be asked to annex two new subdivisions, Harold Parker, developer, told the SUN Friday.

He will appear before the Zoning Commission Tuesday evening to request annexation of Quail Meadows, a subdivision of approximately 100 residential lots in the area "behind the funeral home," also River Bend, which is off the left side of the Booty Crossing road, closer to Georgetown than Oak Crest Estates. It also has about 100 home lots, Parker says, and has been qualified for VA and FHA as well as conventional loans.

GEORGETOWN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE float won first place in the hometown float division. Miss Georgetown, Debi Williamson, and runners-up Susan Parsons and Iva Wolf, rode on the float.

BOND BETWEEN GRANDFATHER AND GRANDSON — was evident Thursday morning when the memorial to Sheriff Henry Matysek was unveiled by his grandson and good friend, Joseph Henry Matysek. After little Joey helped to pull the velvet covering from the sculpture, he wanted to touch it. He is held by his mother, Mrs. James Land. That is his grandmother, Mrs. Henry Matysek, beside them.

Matysek memorial unveiled Thursday

The long-planned-for lifesize bronze sculpture of Williamson County's Sheriff Henry Matysek was unveiled in dedication ceremonies on the east courthouse lawn Thursday morning.

The bronze bust, the work of sculptor H. Clay Dahlberg, was a project sponsored by the Georgetown Kiwanis Club and aided by many Matysek friends.

Kiwanian Clyde Woerner was master of ceremonies at the memorial dedication.

Father Charles Davis, priest of St. Helen's Catholic Church where Matysek was a member, gave the invocation.

Tribute was paid to Matysek by Senator Bill Patman and Representative Dan Kubiak.

Telling of how much he appreciated the friendship and inspiration of Matysek, Kubiak said, "I have a little boy just three years old, and if I thought he could be just half the man Henry Matysek was, I would be satisfied."

Mrs. Matysek responded with words of appreciation for the honor bestowed upon her husband.

The memorial was unveiled by the sheriff's grandson, Joseph Henry Land, assisted by the sculptor and Matysek's daughter, Joanne Matysek Land.

The bronze bust sits on a pink granite pedestal with a bronze plaque attached. It is in the center of the southeast lawn of the courthouse, in sight of the sheriff's office window.

Georgetown School Board schedules special session

Georgetown school board will meet in special session at 5 p.m. Monday to inspect the vocational building at the new high school.

At that meeting, the board is expected to accept or reject the building. Other items to be discussed are the needs of Westside Intermediate School and Northside Middle School.

Supt. Jack Frost said Westside needs additional classrooms and restrooms.

Booty's Crossings historical movie fund reaches half

The Booty's Crossings Film is becoming a reality thanks to the generosity of local contributors who have now brought the total collections for the project to within $5 of the half way mark of $1000.

"Dianne Koenig, a young film-maker from Austin, has already begun to photograph some of the area," said Linda Graves who is coordinating the project.

"We hope to raise $3000 in all," she said. "The absolute minimum we will have to have is $2000, and since we have just about half that amount now, we decided to go ahead."

The Booty's Crossings (some of them technically have other names) are low water bridges over the North San Gabriel River that will be flooded when the North Fork Dam is completed.

This area west of Georgetown provides a beautiful rustic blending of clear water, rugged cliffs, inviting beaches, a wealth of fossils, huge native trees and an abundant variety of wild flowers and birds.

As far back as anyone can remember, people have fished, picnicked, hunted and gone swimming along the more than 10 mile stretch of river between the First Booty's and the Fourth.

A filmed record of the landscape will help preserve the memory of it when it is gone, and this film will be available for showing without charge to any group wishing to see it. It should prove to be an important addition to the rich historical record of Williamson County.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution honoring someone, or in memory of someone, may do so. A black and white wood block print will be sent to the family as acknowledgement of the gift.

Contributions may be made to Booty's Crossings Film at the First National Bank or the Citizens State Bank in Georgetown or by calling Mrs. Tom Graves. All contributions are tax-deductible.

The latest gifts are from Barbara and Dick Pearce, Martha Allen, and from Basil and Allyce Phillips in memory of Jeannine Fairburn's father and Esther Richard's mother; and from R. C. Penick in memory of John Lessor Girvin. They bring the total contributed so far to $995.

Week's news in a nutshell

WESTERN WEEK ENTERTAINMENT was highlighted by a parade, barbecue, rodeo and dances.

CAPCO SPENT $253,628 for staff salaries and benefits during 1974, according to a recent report received by Williamson County Commissioners. Dues for the county are approximately $2000 based on 5¢ per capita, paid to CAPCO, a regional council of governmental bodies.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY COMMISSIONERS decided that they have no legal authority to settle a dispute concerning a 13 foot alley right-of-way in Liberty Hill. Commissioner Wesley Foust had requested the item be put on the agenda for last Monday's meeting.

ACTING AS A TAX EQUALIZATION BOARD, County Commissioners compromised with the General Telephone Company, raising the valuation of the phone company's property by $100,000 to a total of $420,650. The total increase in taxes for General Telephone was estimated to be about $1,000.

Paul Harvey

Did you hear who's been denying equal employment opportunity to employees?

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Really. THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT has accused the EEOC of violating the employment rules it seeks to enforce on the rest of us.

When are we going to stop deluding ourselves about "equality"?

Since it was your money the U.S. Public Health Service spent to finance Prof. Scanzoni's research, at least you deserve to know what he learned. He interviewed 3,000 families in five Midwestern states and discovered that "the more education a husband has, the more willing he is to help his wife with housework."

This supports the C. S. Lewis contention that "only the less-than-equal ever worry about it."

A pitiful problem has developed where our federal and state governments try to enforce equal job opportunities for the handicapped. Of course it can't be done.

The federal government and 22 states and the District of Columbia have passed laws granting equal employment opportunities to persons with physical, mental or medical disabilities.

Yet when "discrimination" is challenged, the complaint often raises more questions than it can answer.

A NURSE WAS DENIED a job in a New York hospital because she has high blood pressure; potentially subject to fainting spells.

Donald Hays has a hearing problem and is confined to a wheelchair. He was hired, then dismissed from his job for "lack of mobility." The New Mexico Human Rights Commission awarded him damages and forced the employer to rehire him.

In Natick, Mass., a 30-year-old woman was denied a job because she had multiple sclerosis. The State Division of Industrial Safety accused the company of violating the law. In this case, a judge upheld the company.

As with job discrimination against women and minorities, frequently the handicapped are turned down for jobs without being told why. The "why" may involve converting steps to ramps for wheelchairs, higher insurance rates, installation of special signals for the deaf or the blind. Federal (and some state) laws can force these architectural modifications, multiplying the cost of employing handicapped workers.

MANY AMERICANS let politicians or the news media do their thinking for them.

Let me confide that politicians and the news media, where a concern is humanitarian, rarely dare speak out against the poor, the deprived, the unlovely or the imperfect.

However impractical the pretense, these thought leaders must continue to pretend that we are all equal, when, in fact, of course, no two of us are.

C. S. Lewis believed, "No man who says, 'I'm as good as you are' believes it. He wouldn't say it if he did. The St. Bernard never says it to the toy dog, nor the scholar to the dunce, nor the employable to the bum, nor the pretty woman to the plain."

"The claim to equality, outside the strictly political field, is made only by those who feel themselves to be in some way inferior. What it expresses is precisely the itching, smarting, writhing awareness of an inferiority which the patient refuses to accept."

Just suppose

Remember the fuss over whether or not to use Texas Crushed Stone property for a landfill to serve western Williamson County? THERE WAS QUITE A RUMPUS, with the commissioners favoring the site because it had been offered and was conveniently located. Others, however, feared the entire area's water supply might become polluted by a large landfill there.

Finally, the project was dropped when E. B. Snead, who owned the land, withdrew his offer.

With that bit of local history as background information, some may be interested in what happened in New Castle County, Delaware, where an expenditure of $15 million will be made to stop leachate from a landfill through sand holes that were thought to be impermeable layers of clay and to save a water supply for a large area.

LEACHATE INFILTRATED the groundwater used for drinking and industrial purposes. Present infiltration of the leachate, says Civil Engineering, a publication by and for American Civil Engineers, is now calculated at about 60 to 80 thousand gallons a day. It has formed a leachate plume in the aquifer which threatens the Artesian Water Company's wells, the source of drinking water for the area. The county has already incurred costs of $800,000 for consulting, testing and the replacement of water supplies. In addition, the entire county has been forced into a water rationing program to conserve the limited safe water now available.

Perhaps this would not have happened here. Perhaps our water supply would have remained pure and uncontaminated. But just suppose.

We are pleased our Commissioners had the caution and good judgment to start looking elsewhere for their landfill.

Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals would be combined in new State Constitution

AUSTIN — That old game of "musical chairs" may become one of "musical benches" as a result of a potential combination of political events this year and next.

The situation is this: On Nov. 4, Texans will vote on Article V of a proposed new Texas Constitution. If they approve, Texas will "unify" its judiciary, by combining the Texas Supreme Court and the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, with their present nine and five justices and judges.

Under the terms of that article, and the "transition schedule" which accompanies it, when any one of the 14 judges is removed, retires or resigns, his place on the new court "self destructs" like the tape in the spy movie. This goes on until the court is down to nine members, the present size of the Supreme Court.

The other day, Associate Justice Ruel Walker of the Supreme Court sent in his resignation, effective Sept. 30. Gov. Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde quickly appointed his old friend, District Judge Ross Doughty of Uvalde, to take that place on the court Oct. 1.

Chief Justices Charles Barrow and Martin Dies, Jr., of the San Antonio and Beaumont Courts of Civil Appeals, had already announced as candidates in the Democratic primaries of 1976 for Judge Walker's place on the court.

So the phone lines must have been hot between Beaumont, San Antonio and Uvalde trying to learn whether Judge Doughty, who will become Associate Justice Doughty on Oct. 1, plans to run for a full six-year term on the Supreme Court.

The 64-year-old Uvalde judge, with credit already for 24 years of judicial service, could have retired next year with an annual benefit of $18,600 a year, 60 per cent of what district judges will be paid starting Sept. 1. Now that he is being promoted, his potential retirement goes up to $28,440 a year, which is 60 per cent of the $47,400 a year he will be getting on the Supreme Court after Sept. 1, 1976. If he should retire before Sept. 1, 1976, his retirement would be only $27,360 a year, the rate at which Justice Walker will be retiring on Sept. 30.

If Associate Justice Doughty should decide to run for a full six-year term in 1976, that seat on the Supreme Court would continue in being. If he should hold it until after Sept. 1, 1976, when the new Article V would take effect if the people vote it, and then retire, the seat would be abolished.

And if Barrow and Dies had run for it, and one of them had won the nomination, they would have had a pleasant spring campaigning around the state, but would hold a nomination to an office which no longer existed. It would not appear on the general election ballot in November, 1976.

But, under the new constitutional provision, if Judge Doughty should run, the place on the court would remain in being, even if he should lose it to Dies or Barrow.

And then there is another "maybes" in this story which has the aspirants for high judicial office gossiping. The "transition article" provides that the above is what happens "unless otherwise provided by law." That means that the Legislature, which would meet in January, 1976 if the new Constitution is adopted, could provide that the Doughty place on the Supreme Court would remain in being even if he should retire. That would let Dies or Barrow go ahead and win election to a full six-year term and stay on the court as long as they can get re-elected.

It's really bad news for the justices of the 14 Courts of Civil Appeals, from whence many Supreme Court justices come.

From all indications, there will not be an "open place" on the high court for many years to come, since waiting for 5 of the other 13 to retire could take a long time.

The places up for election in 1976 are those of Presiding Judge John F. Onion, Jr., and Truman Roberts on the Court of Criminal Appeals, and Associate Justices Jack Pope and James G. Denton on the Supreme Court. All four are counted as certain candidates for another full six-year term, which could carry them to Dec. 31, 1982.

Other members of the high courts who will be up for re-election in 1978 are likewise likely to run again.

So, if the people vote to merge the two courts, it may remain at 13 or 14 members for quite awhile, the difference being whether Judge Doughty settles for a year and a little more and then retires, or whether he decided he likes the job and runs for another six-year term. But it could be 1982 or even later before there's another chance for Barrow and Dies to run for an "open place."

Food Supply Threat

WASHINGTON—A recent ruling by the Federal Power Commission (FPC) presents a serious threat to the economy of the Southwest, and to America's ability to produce food for itself and the world in future years.

The FPC has the authority to set the wellhead price at which natural gas may be sold in the interstate market, and to establish who shall have priority in the use of natural gas.

The purpose of the FPC priority rating system, in which there are five categories, is to determine which natural gas users will be cut off first if supplies of natural gas fall below the demand for it.

There have been increasingly severe shortages of natural gas since federal price controls were established in 1954. An FPC staff report released early this month indicated that net supply deficiencies in the interstate market will total nearly three trillion cubic feet this year, a 45 per cent greater deficiency than last year.

The FPC issued an order last December which reduces the priority of natural gas used for agricultural purposes from priority two to priority three.

Up until the FPC ruling, which would be locked in concrete if a natural gas bill currently before the Senate is enacted into law, farm use of natural gas had been assigned a priority second only to home use.

Farmers in the arid regions of the Southwest have a vital need for a dependable supply of natural gas, which is used to power their irrigation wells. Alternative sources of power for the irrigation wells in most cases are technologically unfeasible or prohibitively expensive.

When a farmer prepares to plant in arid country, he must decide months in advance whether or not he will irrigate. That decision is contingent upon the availability of natural gas. Without dependable irrigation, farm yields drop, farm income declines, and food prices to consumers everywhere increase.

Nothing produced in America is more important to our own well being and to our foreign balance of payments than our agricultural commodities. If we are to have the wherewithal to trade with other countries for raw materials we need, then food production in America must be as high as possible.

The FPC's shortsighted action will have a ripple effect that will be felt by the housewife at the supermarket check-out counter, the international banker, and by the starving peasant in India. The fact is America has NO vital interest more important than that of the farmer. Agricultural use of natural gas should be restored to its former priority. I will support legislation to that effect.

Texas salvagers seek U.S. 'junk'

By the Associated Press

Melton Dimock squinted into the bright Texas sun as he surveyed the sophisticated components of the super-expensive F-111 aircraft, industrial jewels, office machines, furniture, and late-model cars that all once belonged to the U.S. Government.

They are junk now. "I'm sure we've got well over $1 million worth of government equipment," Mr. Dimock said as he studied the castoffs originally paid for with U.S. tax dollars.

"Altogether we probably paid $500 or $600 for it," said Mr. Dimock, a partner in a big salvage firm here whose "holdings" are spread over several acres of once-prime pastureland in the cow country northwest of Fort Worth.

Mr. Dimock said his firm gets "three or four sheets a month" from the General Services Administration (GSA), the federal agency charged with disposing of unwanted materials.

"They don't care what they get for the stuff they have for sale. They're not in the moneymaking business; they're in the getting-rid-of-business."

In recent weeks, Mr. Dimock and his partner, Louis Freeman, have consummated the following transactions with the U.S. Government:

- Entered a successful bid of $37 each for three Litton bombsights off the F-111, which originally cost Uncle Sam $66,000 apiece.

- Bought $26,000 of tiny rubies and sapphires, used as jewel bearings in precision equipment, for $66.

- Purchased "about an acre and a half" of miscellaneous surplus items, including desks, appliances, and other furniture for a total investment of $118.

Some months ago, the partners paid $35 for a radar "terrain finder" that had cost $185,000 in federal funds. They later resold the equipment for $15,000.

"Sometimes we're the only bidder," Mr. Dimock said. "When that happens, we can bid as little as $10 and get the stuff."

Used cars are put up for bid by the GSA every few weeks, he said.

"We just bought a 1971 Plymouth Fury with air and power for $161 and a 1972 Ambassador, similarly equipped, for $377."

Used cars have an obvious retail value, but some other items that cost American taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars only a few months ago may not move as quickly.

Who will buy, for instance, the F-111 bombsights? Both men shrug their shoulders.

"I don't have any idea what we'll do with them," said Mr. Freeman. "But at the price we paid, who cares?"

Supreme Court leaning toward capital penalty?

Postponed decision stirs speculation

By C. Robert Zelnick
Special to
The Christian Science Monitor

In postponing its decision on the constitutionality of capital punishment, the U.S. Supreme Court has fanned speculation that it ultimately will rule in favor of the death penalty.

The reason cited for such speculation is the uncertain status of Associate Justice William O. Douglas.

Justice Douglas was one of five who, in 1972, voted against capital punishment as then applied. Since that 5-4 ruling in the case of Furman v. Georgia, the makeup of the court has not changed. But should Justice Douglas resign, and should President Ford appoint someone more conservative to succeed him, the fragile anti-capital punishment majority could shift to the detriment of some 290 prisoners under death sentences.

Debates among the Supreme Court justices are conducted in the privacy of judicial chambers and on procedural matters, such as the decision to postpone a ruling on capital punishment. A breakdown on how individual justices voted is rarely made public.

Former law clerks and other veteran observers, however, cite several reasons which could have motivated the courts action June 23 to put over to the next term the case of Fowler v. North Carolina. These include:

- Difficulty on the part of at least one justice in determining how to vote coupled with a desire to consider the matter during the long summer recess and to hear it reargued in the fall.

- A feeling that the case had been badly argued by at least one of the sides.

- Tactical considerations on the part of at least one justice — the desire to have more time to persuade his colleagues that his position is correct, or, perhaps, to await a shift in the composition of the court.

Once a case has been argued, its disposition rests with a majority vote by the entire court. But observers note that in major cases a request by a single justice to set the matter over to the following term is usually honored.

The most famous instance of such a procedure involved the school desegregation case, Brown v. Board of Education. Initially set for decision during the 1952 term, it was ordered reargued in 1953. What had begun as a slender majority for segregation became, in 1954, a unanimous landmark decision against segregation.

Observers believe that the capital punishment case, argued April 21, presents the court with unique difficulties in terms of fashioning a majority position. The basic issue is whether the death penalty violates the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment.

In the 1972 Furman decision, only two of the five "majority" justices — William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall — held that it did. Associate Justices Potter Stewart and Douglas argued only that the penalty had been imposed in ways that resulted in an inordinately high percentage of black defendants sentenced to death. And Justice Byron R. White could find "no meaningful way of distinguishing the few cases in which [capital punishment] is imposed from the many cases in which it is not."

But Justice White, traditionally wary of usurping state prerogatives, argued further that since imposition of the death penalty had been left by state legislatures to the discretion of juries, the court's ruling did no real damage to legislative intent.

Since 1972, however, more than half the states, as well as the federal government, have made capital punishment mandatory for certain specific types of offenses. Observers thus see no way for the court to now rule against the death penalty without holding it unconstitutional at all times and under all circumstances and, in doing so, to frankly state that the will of elected legislative bodies must yield to judicial re-interpretation of an amendment adopted at a time when capital punishment was commonplace.

Constitutional scholars note that the Constitution itself assumed the legality of death sentences by requiring jury trials in capital cases.

For four justices who voted with the Furman minority — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Associate Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr., and William H. Rehnquist — face no similar logical dilemmas since their interpretation simply holds that capital punishment is neither "cruel" nor "unusual" in the constitutional sense. Individual legislatures and juries are thus left to determine its application.

A HAT WOULD BE SO MUCH COOLER!

She must go to the native market for her physical needs. The straw hat would be so much better than the old scarf tied and knotted about her head. Sweet, cool air could come through that straw and that would feel so wonderful in this heat!

Where does she go for her spiritual needs? Is there a church on the island? Does she know that she will be told about a great God there who will help her, guide her, and refresh her?

How fortunate we are in this country that there is a church in every community. Spiritual help, refreshment of soul, fellowship and love awaits all who enter her doors. We invite you to attend Church this week.

Jarrell postpones decision on roofing of high school

Four Jarrell Independent School District trustees postponed a decision on bids for roofing of the high school building until all seven members of the board are present.

Thursday night's special session got off to a 45 minute late start due to lack of a quorum.

Bids for repairing the roof ranged from approximately $1000 to $4850 but different processes were involved to go along with the discrepancies in price.

E. M. Durbin, Inc. bid $4308 but stated their company would tear off the existing roof and build a new structure.

The low bidder V. J. Turner of Georgetown selling Pace Products suggested his product could patch the existing roof.

SUPT. A. L. LYTLE explained to board members, "The roof has got to be fixed before we can go in there and fix the floor."

Trustee Bud Stockton agreed, "Getting a good roof on there is the life of the building."

"The problem is," Lytle said, "whether can we budget the roof in or whether we may have to borrow the money."

"On an expenditure of this nature, I'd like to have everyone here to vote on this," Stockton said. Other board members agreed and the roofing contract was tabled until another special session to be held at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

In other business, trustees approved a contract with Region XIII of the Educational Service Center, a state agency for supply of educational materials and supplies. The school district pays one dollar per student for the services.

No action was taken concerning a contract with KLRN television station for providing special educational programs for students. Board President J. R. Sybert questioned Lytle, "Do you think this program is used often enough to justify the expenditure?" The district pays 75 cents per student for the service, according to Lytle, and the Texas Education Agency pays 75 cents.

Lytile said that the service is used in science and social studies courses, but that due to conflicts in scheduling is not used in many other courses.

Stockton suggested that the contract with KLRN be tabled until the next regular meeting of the board.

THE 1975 SENIORS from Jarrell left an $80 contribution for the purchase of a trophy case for the school district, according to Lytle. The superintendent estimated a cost of $360 to have a case with sliding glass doors built.

The electricity bill for the baseball field was $172.80 for the first summer month, according to Lytle. That bill is paid by the Little League in Jarrell.

Lytile reported to the board that TEA had notified him that the district will not be required to have an assistant principal with an administrator's certificate.

TEA ruled that school districts with fewer than 19 teachers may have a part-time principal without an administrator's certificate, which will save the district money, Lytle explained.

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

On July 4, a much publicized Fourth Annual Willie Nelson Picnic will be staged, according to plan, just west of Liberty Hill. Even though there have been many divergent views expressed about this program, it is expected to be quite a noteworthy event. Willie Nelson is a very well known entertainer, and most of the other people on the program are equally as renowned. According to a radio report Thursday morning, Willie Nelson has not been idle during the preparations for the Liberty Hill Program; he has made many appearances in concerts around the country, with one being in New York City with a symphony orchestra. Because this man is so well known, and because he depends so heavily on public respect, surely the Liberty Hill program will be a success and no one in our community will suffer any major consequences!

The volleyball tournament that the Panther Booster Club was planning to hold this weekend has had to be postponed because many of the teams are not able to come for various reasons. The tournament will be played at a later date during the latter part of July. You can expect more details in this column when the new date has been decided upon.

The Panther Booster Club has made a deal with a contractor to lay the asphalt on the tennis courts, and the money to finance this is being borrowed because the Club's treasury was inadequate at this time.

We want to stress the fact that these tennis courts will have an inestimable beneficial effect on our community by providing a badly needed recreational facility for a sport that is gaining in popularity everywhere. These tennis courts will be a definite asset to the school, and to the entire community, and we urge everyone to make a donation to help pay for this new facility.

The Williamson County Fifth Sunday Singing will be held this afternoon, June 29, from two until four in Leander at The First Baptist Church. All leaders and all singing groups are urged to COME and PARTICIPATE, and everyone else is invited to COME and hear lots of good singing!

On Tuesday evening, June 24, new officers were installed by the Liberty Hill AF and AM Masonic Lodge in ceremonies at the Liberty Hill Lodge Hall.

The new officers are the following: WM - D. H. Gardner; AW - F. P. Stephenson; JW - Vaughn Brooks; treasurer - L. A. Fry; Secretary - John R. Evans; Chaplain - B. R. Pinyan; SD - Thomas Meginnis; JD - J. H. Wilson; SS - Wilson Parks; JS - B. T. Knowlin; Tiler - C. F. Weston. The installing officers were W.M.-B. R. Pinyan, Installing Marshal - B. T. Knowlin and assistant marshal - Bro. Mathews.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, June 19, 1975, for Felipe Montemayor, age 64. He was a longtime resident of Liberty Hill, and he is survived by four brothers, Louis, Angelo, Ernest and Hildo all of Liberty Hill, and two sisters, Mrs. Licha Castillo of Spur, and Ilaria Montemayor of Liberty Hill, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Those who need help are not nearly so handicapped as those who will not give it! KEEP SMILING!

"You ask what it's like in a Nursing Home. Well, nothing can ever be like your own, But it's just what life has always been; A mixture of pleasure, trouble and pain. It's accepting the fact that youth is gone. That help is needed to carry on. It's instant help when the need has come. It's loving concern from those still young; It's a cheery wave, a hug or two, It's knowing that someone cares for you. It's finding fault, complaining a lot, It's the feeling of security that you've got. It's the wheelchairs, walkers, crutches, canes. It's music, singing, parties and games. It's chapel each morning, a time for prayer, It's a feeling of sadness at a vacant chair, So with dear ones gone, or sick, or alone, It's thanking God for a Nursing Home".

Heads or tails?—U.S. Mint changes 3 coins for Bicentennial

The hand flips a coin. Heads I win. Tails you win. The eyes light on the head of a colonial drummer. Did you win or lose the toss? You won! That head is really a tail. You can take the word of Mary Brooks, Director of the U. S. Mint. She's our nation's coinmaker and says the colonial drummer was chosen in a national design competition to appear on the back of the new Bicentennial quarter. George Washington, she insists, still heads the coin over a new date — 1776-1976 — and it was all done to celebrate our country's 200th birthday. "I know big decisions, like whether or not to walk the dog in the rain, rest on the flip of a coin," Mrs. Brooks says, "and I want to warn the nation's big decision makers about the coming big change in their small change." In all, the Mint is changing the designs on the backs of three coins in honor of the Bicentennial. Along with

Washington on the quarter, those famous faces of Kennedy and Eisenhower, with the new twin date, still head the half dollar and dollar. Again, it's the backs that carry the new Bicentennial designs. Independence Hall won its place on the back of the half dollar. And the moon and Liberty Bell were chosen for the dollar reverse.

By July 7, 1975, your friendly neighborhood bank should begin receiving the first of the circulating Bicentennial coins to be released — the Kennedy-Independence Hall half dollar. Before the end of the year, the Federal Reserve System will have had the time to supply the nation's commercial banks with the newly redesigned quarter and dollar.

"To me, these coins — like all our coins — are symbols of our nation's 200 years of freedom," Mrs. Brooks says. "They are small links with our historical and cultural heritage that will touch the hands of every man, woman and child in America." "Liberty" was the rallying cry of the American Revolution — and "Liberty" has been proclaimed and inscribed on each and every coin since the creation of the U. S. Mint in 1792.

Launching a national coinage was a big step in the formation of our young nation. "Now," Mrs. Brooks says, "we are launching the most significant coinage change in the history of the Mint."

The new coin designs are expressions of the patriotic sentiments of grassroots America. Under the sponsorship of the Treasury Department, they were selected in a national $5,000 award competition and each of the new designs bears the winner's initials.

The winning design on the back of the quarter is the work of Jack L. Ahr of Arlington Heights, Ill. Seth G. Huntington of Minneapolis, Minn., executed the reverse on the half dollar. And Dennis R. Williams, a sculpture student at the Columbus College of Art and Design, Columbus, Ohio, designed the dollar reverse.

Special 40% silver specimens of the Bicentennial coins are also available. For details, write to the Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, California 94175.

an area near the Second Booty's Crossing known as Crockett's Gardens or Knight's Springs.

In Land of Good Water, Clara Stearns Scarbrough describes a mill built there in 1855, and tells how James Knight purchased the old mill in 1879. He "put in a truck garden where he raised the first strawberries in the county." During these early years, an unofficial rural mail route predating the federal government's rural system was established between Old Liberty Hill and Georgetown via stations at Rock House and Knight's Garden. Mail was delivered in saddlebags by horseback. The entire route has abundant spring water, a spectacular waterfall, high banks with ferns and water plants, facilities for irrigation.

"The moist, seeping springs are surrounded by hills, giving the area an unusual humidity. From the truck gardens operated by James Knight, later by F. M. Crockett and family, and by the Redard brothers, vegetables were trucked to Austin and sold."

D. F. Bredthauer of San Antonio, Marvin Behrens' uncle, used to live near Crockett's Gardens and remembers the area well. In a recent letter to Linda Graves, he recalled the giant native walnut trees growing on his family's land.

During World War I when he was a boy, Bredthauer remembers that some of the trees were sold to the U. S. government. The huge trees were cut and dragged out by mule teams to be made into gun stocks for the war effort.

There is not as much water coming over the fall now as there was in the old days when the mill was there. But the ferns, mosses, elephant ears and the giant oak trees are still there.

One of the main joys of the Booty's Crossings has always been the generosity of the land owners who have given easy access to the river. The public has not been restricted from enjoying the shade, water, fish and swimming holes, all for free.

The Booty's Crossings Film will help to save at least the memory of all those good times.

Nine Williamson County 4-H Club members attended the District 10 4-H Leadership Lab held in Brownwood, June 20, 21, and 22. The theme for this year's lab was "Future Leadership Is Yours, Can You Hack It?"

Those attending the lab attended training sessions on Leadership, Recreation, Bicentennial, Youth and Adult Relations and Ceremonials and Songs. Other activities included swimming, volleyball and nightly parties.

ALL fireworks are dangerous!

As the Independence Day holidays approach, the Texas Society for the Prevention of Blindness has issued its annual warning. . . ALL fireworks are dangerous, even the smallest firecracker and the seemingly harmless sparkler.

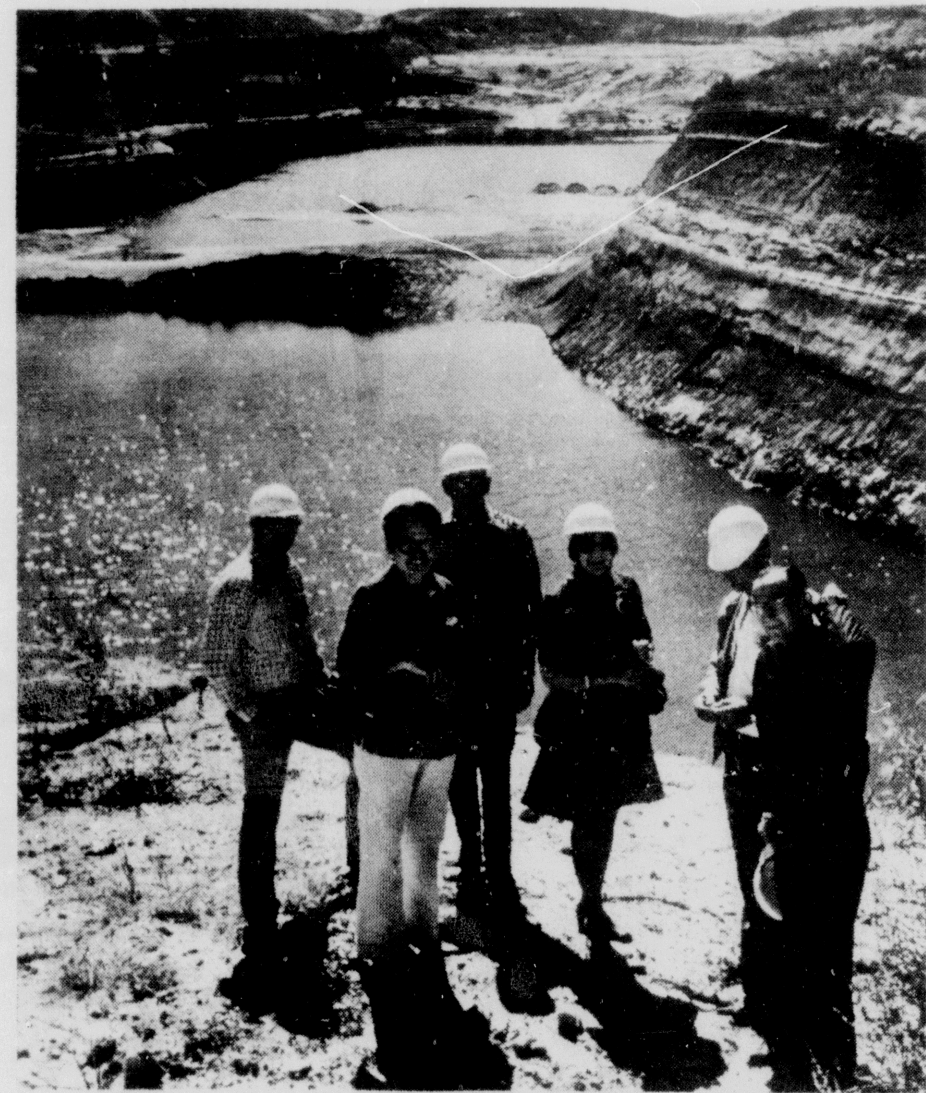

"We do not want to spoil the traditional patriotic fun of the Fourth," says L. M. Flanary, M.D. of the sight conservation organization, "but we strongly urge that use of all fireworks be confined to licensed public displays."

"Every year, the Society receives far too many reports of eyes injured from the use of fireworks, even in states where they have been outlawed. Many of the injured are children. Because all pyrotechnic devices are dangerous, there is truly no safe way to use them."

The Society makes a special plea to parents to see that their children are not permitted to use fireworks of any kind, and to keep their children away from anyone who does. Frequently, the innocent bystander gets hurt. It is hard for children to recognize the danger in anything they see as "fun", so it's up to adults to take the responsibility.

Celebrate the Fourth, the Society says, but celebrate it safely. Vision is priceless. . . don't take needless chances with it.

SENATOR PATMAN AT THE MINES

Patman explores mines

A good example of the type of pit which results from strip mining for uranium is shown in the attached photograph taken during a tour by Senator Bill Patman of the Karnes County Uranium mines. The pit in the background is 14,000 feet long. It has an average width of 300 feet, and an average depth of 100 feet. 15,600,000 cubic yards of material have been mined from the pit in the photograph, a volume that included not only the shallow uranium ore zone at the bottom, but also the soil overburden.

To remove that amount of material by one train would require 111,430 rail cars. A train pulling that many cars would have a total length of more than 1,248 miles.

In speaking of the Governor's election to sign Senate Bill 55, the bill to regulate strip mining of coal, lignite, and uranium, Senator Patman said: "I am confident that the regulation imposed by the Railroad Commission on strip mining will be reasonable to both the landowners and the operators. While I was concerned about the economic stress which on company said would result from the proposed law, I know that the Governor, in making his very careful and thorough examination, concluded that the benefits to be derived from the bill far outweigh the problems it might possibly cause. Control of strip mining is vital, I believe, and Senate Bill 55 will provide some much needed protection to future generations of Texans."

Wind goggles, scarf, driving cap — all in place. A flick of the ignition and the roadster purrs into action. Dave Laquidara eases down the handbrake and the sleek Auburn glides into the street.

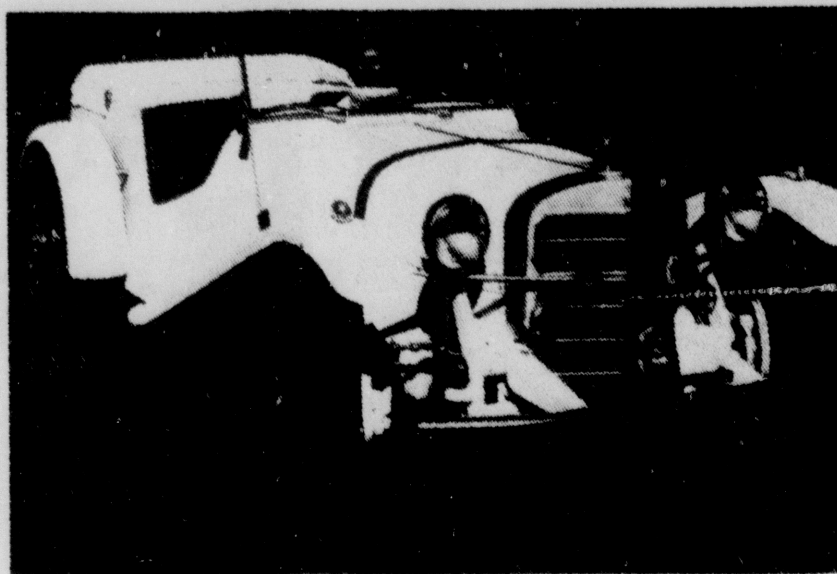

Perhaps somewhere nearby a Bugatti two-seater fires up — or a 1929 Mercedes Gazelle with mahogany running boards, or a Ford Moie A.

The scene is not the Great Gatsby's front driveway or an outing of some car collector's club. In fact, the cars are fakes — but increasingly popular fakes.

'Fiberfabs'

Eight companies now manufacture fiber glass copies, nicknamed "fiberfabs," of old cars such as the above, and sell them either as kits to be mounted on the chassis of modern-day autos, or do the mounting themselves and sell the cars complete.

"The person who buys these cars is not someone who's interested in an old car," says Pat Kemp of the Classic Motor Company in Palm Beach, Fla., which manufactures a

Fiber glass replica of 1929 Mercedes Gazelle

Few would guess under this body is Volkswagen

"modified" Model A Ford replica, a sales boost, says Mr. Kemp.

"There's an emotional attachment to them; they bring back the 'good old days'."

And contrary to expectations, the current economic slump has brought

An Auburn roadster in good condition, for instance (Auburn also made the Duesenberg) would cost between $30,000 - $50,000. Originally built in 1932, it looks about as long as a standard-sized Plymouth or Ford, but seats only two people and no luggage — an extravagance of luxury that makes a 1975 Cadillac seem economical.

"The body is an exact copy of the original . . . and is mounted on a Chevrolet or Ford" frame, says Mr. Laquidara, who sells the cars complete or as kits out of Milford, Mass. "The fiber glass molds were made from an actual disassembled '32 Auburn . . . It would take a professional mechanic about three months and a 'backyard' mechanic about eight months" to build the car, he says. Prices start at $4,000 for a kit and go to $16,000 for a completed car.

For example, $750 and a Volkswagen chassis get you a 30-miles-per-gallon 1927 Bugatti 35B. Bay Products Corporation of Miami makes replicas of it and a 1929 Mercedes-Benz Gazelle (which costs more).

Antique car buffs generally regard most of the imitations with feelings ranging from disdain to indifference, says John Gillis of the Antique Auto Museum in Brookline, Mass. "Except for the Auburn roadster, the copies are not exact. . . . The workmanship is often poor, and they are usually overpriced," he says.

Increasing sales

But most of the companies report steadily increasing sales. Classic sells about 1,000 Model A's and about 150 Romuluses (another Auburn — 1935) a year even with hefty price tags of $10,000 and $19,500, respectively.

But Mr. Gillis points out that the fiber glass versions "aim for a different audience," one not necessarily interested in an original, as well as the considerable work and expense involved in restoration.

VW becomes Bugatti

But if taste and economics run in other directions, the field is wide open.

'Civilisation' films 'Happiness' and 'Reason' at S.U. and library

The film series "Civilisation" continues here this week with the ninth and tenth films in the 13-part series.

Tuesday and Wednesday showings will feature "The Pursuit of Happiness" with the Tuesday, July 1 presentation at 7 p. m. in the Student Union music room at Southwestern University at Georgetown and the Wednesday, July 2 showing at noon in the Georgetown City Library.

"The Pursuit of Happiness" is primarily about music; and some of the qualities of 18th century music — its melodious flow, its complex symmetry, its decorative invention — are reflected in its architecture; but not its deeper appeal to emotions.

"The Smile of Reason" will be shown Thursday, July 3 at 7 p. m. at Southwestern. It will not be shown Friday, July 4.

since the library will be closed for the national holiday.

"The Smile of Reason" explores the Age of Reason, of Voltaire and his wit and passion for justice, of the creation of encyclopedias, of the salon with its brilliant conversation, an age in which the pursuit of reason led to revolution.

The public is invited to these educational 50-minute films. No admission is charged.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Members of the Williamson County 4-H Clubs have a very busy week ahead of them with a Dress Review on Wednesday, and a Home Garden Vegetable Show on Thursday. Then on Sunday, July 8, a group of nineteen will leave for a week's trip to Kansas.

Lovely girls all decked out in their latest creations will highlight the 4-H Club Dress Review to be held in St. Helen's Catholic Church Parish Hall on the night of July 2 at 8 p. m.

"Each girl will model the apparel she has made herself. Clothing of all types will be entered in the competition: pants, dresses, skirts, in fact anything to wear," said Judy Dedek, County Home Demonstration Agent.

Each girl has been working under the supervision of her adult 4-H leader. Judging will take place prior to the review.

Each participant will receive a ribbon based on her individual score. The first place winner in each division will represent Williamson County in the District 4-H Dress Review. First place winners from 18 counties will be in Austin, July 23 for the district review to be held at Town Hall in Hancock Center at 2:00 p. m.

There will be three divisions represented: the sub-junior for 9, 10 and 11 year olds; the junior division for 12 and 13 year olds; and the senior division for those who are 14 and older.

Ten girls have just completed a project in embroidery, and their work will also be shown at the Dress Review.

Home-grown vegetables will be on display on the Courthouse lawn Thursday morning, July 3. The Williamson County 4-H Club members will be competing for ribbons in the Home Garden Vegetable Show.

Sam Cotner, Extension Horticulturalist, will be on hand to judge the produce and to explain the basis for his judgment, so that the participants can learn how to choose quality produce when making their own selections from the garden or the store.

John Wakefield, County Agent, said that ribbons will be awarded to all participants with 1st, 2nd and 3rd places for the best vegetables produced in the family garden of the 4-H members.

Entries will be limited to one per person for each class or category of each class.

Entries will be accepted between 9:00 and 10:00 a. m. on July 3 on the north lawn of the Courthouse. Judging will begin at 10:00 a. m.

"Entries will not be accepted before 9:00 a. m.," Wakefield said.

The vegetables may be brought in any kind of container. Agents will transfer all entries to official containers.

There is no fee for entry in the competition. A list of classes and the quantity which should be entered in each can be obtained from the County Agent's Office in the Courthouse.

The Kansas trip for 19 of the 4-H Club members represents the completion of a project in the 4-H Exchange Program which began last summer. Williamson County members hosted a delegation of 30 from Jefferson County, Kansas, and next week the Kansans will be returning the favor.

County Home Demonstration Agent Judy Dedek, and County Agent John Wakefield will go with the group on the train. They will leave July 8 and return July 14. They will be staying with families of the Jefferson County, Kansas 4-H Club members while they are there.

There are 425 members of the 9 4-H Clubs in Williamson County with groups in Georgetown, Round Rock, Leander, Liberty Hill, Granger, Taylor, Thrall, Coupland and Jonah.

The boys and girls choose their own projects and work with an adult leader to complete them.

Projects include clothing, foods and nutrition (which encompasses canning and food preservation as well as meal planning and preparation), vegetable gardening, the raising of livestock, horse care, training and showing, and bicycle care and safety.

Other popular projects are in woodworking, ceramics, jewelry making, and other crafts.

JARRELL NEWS

BY RUTH CARSON

We received the following note and news in the mail. "Welcome to you, Mrs. Carson, back to Jarrell."

Mrs. Agnes Urbonovsky visited with Mr. and Mrs. D. Urbonovsky and family in West over the weekend, and with Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Urbonovsky in Abbott, Texas; they all attended the Urbonovsky reunion on Sunday. Mrs. Agnes Urbonovsky visited with the Noel Gayden family on Monday, in Waco. (Agnes enjoyed her trip and returned to Jarrell on Monday night.) "And Mr. and Mrs. Carson, I wish you luck and good health in Jarrell. Will enjoy the Jarrell news again." — from Mrs. Agnes Urbonovsky.

And thank you for taking time to send your news, and my family appreciates your good wishes. Let us hear from you again, soon.

I saw Richard "the Conoco Kid." He and his lovely wife were enjoying the rodeo. I also saw the Richard Bursons in Georgetown.

Kristine Ferguson of San Antonio is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carson and Dan. Kris and Dan visited with Mrs. J. B. Goode; they also visited with Mrs. T. E. McRea and enjoyed some "de-lish-ous" banana cake, made from scratch by Mrs. McRea.

Monday guests in the Clead Daniel's home were Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Evans of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Rice of Loop, Texas, Mrs. Rachel Everts of Sweetbriar, Georgetown; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Everts of Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brown of Jarrell, and Albert Lee Everts of Austin. The clown of the group, Ada Palmer of Austin, speaking of the thirties, had a glass of cornbread and water, and would you believe, an onion!

Man killed on highway

A twenty-five year old San Antonio man was killed Wednesday afternoon when he ran in front of a truck on Highway 79 about 2 miles east of Round Rock.

Texas Department of Public Safety still has the accident under investigation.

The young man had been a patient at the Austin State Hospital, and was being taken to Rusk State Hospital by a member of his family. A quarrel in the car resulted in the young man's getting out on the highway, and the relative leaving him there to go for help.

Almost immediately the man was struck by a car, and within five minutes he ran in front of a truck and was killed.

Reliable witnesses at the scene said both vehicles tried to avoid hitting the man.

Sgt. Fred Hurst of the DPS said there was no criticism of the driver of either vehicle, and no citations were given.

Bicycle laws

State Laws regulating the operation of bicycles on public streets require them to obey all traffic regulations such as Stop Signs, Red Lights, giving Turn Signals, etc., according to Georgetown Police Department.

In addition the following regulations apply:

1. Bicycles must be ridden on the right side as near the right edge as practical.
2. Not more than two may be ridden side by side.
3. Bicycles may not be ridden upon the sidewalks.
4. At night each bicycle must have a white light on the front and a red reflector on the rear.

Applications available for Family Land Heritage

County Judge C. L. Chance and Texas Historical Commission chairman Mrs. Clara Scarborough are working with the Texas Department of Agriculture in registering area farmers and ranchers who qualify for honors in the Family Land Heritage Program for 1975.

The program gives recognition to those who have kept land in the family for 100 years or more, maintaining continuous agricultural operations. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White explained. Last year over 560 families qualified for certificates and inclusion in the Family Land

Heritage Registry, which contains brief histories of all the farms and ranches, the names of current owners, and pictures of early settlers. "The Texas Department of Agriculture has received many requests for the Registry — from universities, historians, and government agencies. It provides an interesting record of agriculture in the early days of Texas, as well as anecdotes about members of the families. "We also included notations on the 100-year-old structures on the property, no matter what condition. This information can be invaluable to researchers," White stated.

"For this reason, we are trying to register all those who qualify — not only to give these people some recognition, but also to have a permanent record of pioneer agricultural producers in Texas." Application forms are available from the county judge's office. Once completed, the forms must be certified by the county judge or his designate. They are then mailed to the Texas Department of Agriculture with any pictures of early settlers which can be copied and returned. Deadline is August 15, 1975.

County Judge's ruling overturned

Beer sale OK'd

Beer may be sold at the Willie Nelson 4th of July picnic in Liberty Hill.

Last week's decision by County Judge C. L. Chance to deny a permit for Austin caterer and businessman Jim Mosley to sell beer for off-premises consumption was overruled Friday morning in the 26th District Court by Judge Jerry Dellano, from the 201 Judicial District in Travis County.

Dellano was filling in for Judge Kirby Vance who is recuperating from an accident.

In his petition for appeal of the county judge's decision, Mosley stated that "the denial of petitioner's application constitutes unreasonable and arbitrary discrimination against the petitioner with other persons similarly situated in that there was no evidence, or, in the alternative, no evidence of sufficient probative force introduced before the county judge to justify denial of the petitioner's application."

The petition further stated, "The county judge did not predicate his findings upon substantial evidence and acted arbitrarily, unjustly, capriciously and illegally in denying the application."

In his denial of the application, Judge Chance stated, "that all property appears to be one continuous premises."

Mosley had applied for the permit on June 10. He had leased a block of ground 55 feet by 60 feet, put a fence around it and erected an 8' by 16' metal building inside the fence. The site is located about 150 yards from the proposed location of the bandstand for Nelson's picnic and music festival.

Local option election in the Liberty Hill precinct authorizes the sale of beer for off premises consumption only. Premises is defined by statute to be the area directly in the control of the licensee.

In overruling the lower court's decision, Dellano stated, "The court is of the opinion that the material allegations in the petitioner's (Mosley) appeal are substantially correct and have been proved by substantial evidence."

Dellano further stated that the county judge's decision should be overturned and license should be granted to Mosley.

Commission to consider Square

The historical zoning of the Courthouse Square in Georgetown will be a major consideration for the Planning and Zoning Commission at its next regular meeting. The proposed ordinance will be discussed Tuesday night, July 2 when the commission meets in the City Council chambers at 7:30 p.m.

The ordinance provides that anyone wishing to alter the face of any existing building on the square must come before a special committee for approval of his plans.

The committee would be composed of not less than five members. Three of the members would be owners of property on the square; one other owner of property within the city limits and one other member not necessarily a property owner. No other qualifications for members are mentioned in the ordinance, and no mention of even the desirability of some historical or architectural knowledge is specified.

THE COMMITTEE would be appointed by the mayor and the city council and would have no relationship to the Planning and Zoning Commission, according to W. L. (Wink) Walden, City Secretary. If the commission approves the ordinance, they will recommend its passage to the city council which can then decide whether or not to make it the law.

Other items on the agenda for the Planning and Zoning Commission meeting will be the consideration of preliminary plats for three new subdivisions and a proposal for the annexation of two others: Quail I and Quail II, located west of Georgetown behind Parker Lumber Co.

The subdivision preliminary plats are for River Bend, Harold Parker's land overlooking the river; for Sherrill Oaks south of town and east of I-35; and the Haas subdivision just south of the Sherrill Oaks area.

★ City to annex

assumes the balance of the district's bonded indebtedness.

"Annexation will obviously kill the MUD, because our development would then be within city limits and subject to whatever utilities arrangement the city directs," Steger said.

The Council had not indicated any intention of annexation during its June 9 meeting, at which Steger and NHI representatives appeared, and Steger complained about the sudden decision.

"I think the Council members are doing what they sincerely think will serve the best interests of Georgetown," he said, "but the way they went about it was, well, ungentlemanly, to say the least."

Steger and NHI representatives have argued to the Council that utilities financing through a MUD will enable the firm to provide low-cost housing for Georgetown which would not otherwise be possible.

"THE CITY'S position is self-defeating," according to Steger, "because the recent housing survey showed the type of housing we intend to provide is a high-priority need for Georgetown."

Utilities service from the city, Steger continued, forces the developer to recover the cost from the lot and home. This eliminates the possibility, he explained, of reducing housing costs to a level which would enable the homebuyer to acquire VA or FHA loans.

At the Council's June 9 meeting, Councilman Harry Gold indicated he felt the higher taxes assessed by a MUD would eventually offset the lower initial cost of the housing.

Steger said he also felt the Council was influenced by the prospect of having to assume the development's bonded indebtedness if it was later annexed by the city.

NHI will have to abandon its development plans if the city annexes, Steger said Wednesday. "I just didn't think they could get it through," he added, "but now it looks like they can."
